"This book presents Pelikan's systematic reflection on his lifelong study of continuity and change in the development of tradition. The result of this reflection is a serious and persuasive 'vindication of tradition' which could be used with great benefit as a prologomenon to historical and doctrinal study."—Randy L. Maddox,

For Yale historian Pelikan, the vindication of tradition is the vindication of a life's work, since he is the author of the monumental study, The Christian Tradition (four volumes so far).

Delivered as the Jefferson Lecture in the Humanities, this focuses, naturally
